BEAUTIFUL LINES.

(The following line were written by Tyrone Power, the famous Iriah comedian, who periched on the steamer President. They were incribed on the wall of the "Old Bindford Church," near Petersburg, Vir-ginia, i. which city Powerhad an engagement :]

Thou are crumbing to the dust, old pile! Thou are hestening to the tail; and round thee in thy loneliness, Clings the try to the wall; The worshippers are scattered new, Who knell before thy shrine; and silence reigns where anthems rose, In days of "Auld Lang Syne."

and sadly sighs the wandering wind,
Where oft in years gone by,
Frayer rose from man, hearts to Him,
The Highest of the High.
The tramp of many a busy foot
That sought thy ansles is o'er,
And r any a weary heart around,
Is still forevermore.

How doth ambition's bops take wings!
How dr ops the appriction !
We hear the distant city's dis;
The dead are mute telow;
The sun that's shone upon their paths
Now golds their lonely graves.
The septyre which one of need their brows
The grass above them waves.

Oh! could we call the many back,
Who've gathered here in rain—
Who've careless forced, where we do now,
Who'll never meet sgain!
How should our very hearts be stirred,
To meet the earliest gaze
Of the levely and it he heautifut—
The lights of other days!

The Barber's Ghost,

A gentleman traveling in one of the East-ern States, some years lago, called at a tav-ern and requested entertainment for the night. The landlord informed him that it was out of THERE DAILY TRAIN! Domestic Happiness In Africa.

Captain Grant, in his "Walk Across Afri-ca," thus describes the home of a wealthy Indian, a henevelent old man who had an es-tablishment of three hundred native wen and women around him: "At three o'clock in the morning, Moosah, who had led a hard life in his day, would call out for his little pill o' opium, which he never missed for forty years. This would brighten him up till noon. He would then transact business that and give you the oversity of the history of the property of the you the gossip at any hour you may sit by him on his carpet. To us it seemed strange that he never stopped talking when prayers from the Koran were being read to him by a "Booksen," or Madagascar man. Perhaps "Booksen," or Madaguscar man. Perhaps he had little respect for the officiating priest, as the same reverend and learned gentleman. Was accustomed to make his shrist! After a mid-day sleep, he would refresh himself with a second but large pill, transact business, and so end the day. The harem department pressented a more domestic scene. At dawn, women in robes of colored chints, their hair neatly plaited over fresh milk to the swarm. neatly plaited, gave fresh milk to the swarm of black cats, or churned butter in gourds, by rocking it two and fro in their laps.

By seven o'clock the whole place was swept clean. Some of the household fed the game fowls, or looked after the ducks and purcons, two women, chained by the neck, fetched firewood, or ground corn at a stone, children would eat together without dispute, because a mattou presided over them—all were quiet, industrious beings, never idle, and as happy as the day was long. When any of Mooscal's as the day was long. When any of Mooscal's wives gave birth to a child there was univer-sal rejoicing; the infant was brought to show its sex; and when one died the shrill laments of the women were heard all night long. When a child misbehaved, we white men were pointed at to frighten it, as nurses at home too often do with ghost-stoties."

Sambo's Ideas of Freedom.

(From the Petersburg Espress.)

Rather an amusing incident occurred in neighboring county a few days since, during the march of a column of United States troops. the march of a column of United States troops. The negroes collected on every farm to witness the passage of the soldiers, and in many instances greeted them with evident marks of pleasure. Sitting upon a gate pest, upon one of these farms, was a sharp little darky just entering his teen, who, when he was told of his freedom, clapped his hands and should for joy. I'se free, I'see free!' he exclaimed, in ecstacy, to his mamma, "I sint gwine to rock de cradle no more, 'case I'se free!'
